North America has to offer. Rocky Mountaineer offers four rail routes: three that connect Vancouver to the Canadian Rockies towns of Banff, Lake Louise and Jasper in Western Canada; and a fourth route that travels between Denver, Colo.

and Moab, Utah in the Southwest United States, from April through October.

It is a must-do travel experience that offers unparalleled journeys in its spacious glass-domed train coaches, thanks to incredible scenery, delicious cuisine, beverages, friendly service, and social atmosphere. Rocky Mountaineer offers two services, SilverLeaf on level one, where you can stand, stretch, or look at the view from over-sized windows and GoldLeaf Service on the upper level with scenic views of 360 degrees, comfortable reclining seats, while dedicated hosts share stories on both levels about the areas the train passes through. To access the upper level, take the spiral staircase and if you or your guest requires mobility support, there also is an elevator.
